GERMAN GOODS IN DUTCH DISGUISES.

The Willy Teuton.

The cessation of business between Germany and the United Kingdom, and the general breakdown of German export brade, says the "Tranmonger," have led to the estublishment in Holland of a num ber of factories, estensibly Dutch, but really owned by Germans, and founded with the express intention of passing off as neutral merchandise what are in effect German wares, and of salving at any rate something from the wreck of the Fatherland's foreign commerce.

Among the articles that are thus passed off through a neutral country under false pretences, incandescent-gas mautles ocempy a prominent place. Such mantles have for years been made in Holland to a small extent, but whereas in the eight months from November 1913 to July 1914, just before the outbreak of the war, the value of the Dutch exports to Britain was only about £3,400, in the first eight months of the war it rose to 2113,000, and there is reason for believ ing that by far the greater part of this increase is represented by German goodseither imported ready made from the Fatherland and repacked in Holland, or made in Ffolland by recently-set-up branches of German factories.

A case in point has just been brought to our notice. There is established at sent an investment of 5.180,0 net. Sloterdyk, near Amsterdam, a firm calling itself the "N. V. Gautsch Gasgloeisafe custody and also the collections of dividends will be undertaken by the light Maatschappy," meaning the Gautsch Incandescent Light Co. (Lim.), which Banque do l'Indo-Chine free of charge. inapulactures incandescent mantels. As the name Gautsch is not Dutch, but German, and as we had not previously heard of a firm of that name in Holland, we made inquiries on the spot, the result of which shows that the so-called Dutch company is a branch of a German firm. working entirely with German capital. and was dumped down in Holland since the outbreak of the war " to avoid the difficulties of the German export," some rwenty five young women being sent over from Germuny to make the mantles. The irony of the pretence lies in the fact that Herr Gautsch, the proprietor, is serving in the German Army, but is 8.00 a.m. to 10.00 a m... There has just come to light one of the most heroic feats of the war. It was performed by a French chasecur at Gerbevilled. When the great German Army entered the village he was posted with a mitraillense all alime at the other end of a bridge leading from the village. When the enemy storted to cross he 'et them get halfway over and then raked them with his fire. For three hours he held the bridge until his ammunition give out, and it is estimated he killed 175 Germans. By his gallant conduct he provented the remainder of his regiment heing ou flanked. I.

CAPTURED BY WOMEN

LIEUTENANT OSTRACISED BY FELLOW-PRISONERS.

When Lieutenant Schulz, of the Kaiser's own Uhlan regiment, was sent to a village in Flanders to hold the post of the supreme arbiter over the lives and property of several hundreds of inhabit ants, he proved himself worthy of the German army's traditions by treating brutally all the unfortunate people that were placed in his power. It was bad enough in his sober moments; it was unboarable when, the brave lieutenant was under the influence of drink; and as the periods of his subriety were short and horrors of his regime.

ant happened to be in a particular rage. Perhaps it was because the wine was not as good as usually, or because he took the unfortunate German ventures against the French too much to heart; but he stormed and swore, threatening death and destruction to all and everything.

Finally be decided to send the men of the village to work in building trenches, while he amused himself for some time by ordering those whom he considered slack in their efforts to be hearen. Tieing of this, he retained to the village, ordered all the women to some to the Kommandatur, and then commanded them to dance and sing for him. As he emphasised his orders by brandishing revolver and salere, there was nothing che to do but carry out his wishes.

PLEADED FOR DEATH.

The women sang and danced for hours, and then the improvisor tyrant fell than a company of French chausseurs rished the village. As the sound of the shots the women fell upon Schulz, tied him hand and foot, and delivered him to the French officer. And this man, who had trampled upon the most sacred feelings of his victims, pleaded with tears in his eyes to be allowed to shoot himself. "I could never live down the disgrace." he cried, " nor will my comrades ever forgive me having been taken pri soner by a pack of peasant women." Lieutenant Schulz is now confined in prisoners' camp in France. He could have been a happy man, since France treats the captured Huns in a most humane way; but somehow or other the story of his capture leaked out, and now he is ostrucised by his fellow-prisoners, who hold that Schulz dishonoured the German uniform by permitting women to take him prisoner.

HOW FOOD HAS RISEN.

Berlin and Vienna Much Worse Off.

Potators, according to a statistical. article in the Board of Trade " Labour Gazette." are about the only article of food showing a drop from the price 12 months ago: The price on July 1 was 2 per cent: less than that on July 1, 1914. As to food in general an estimate is made that it is about 85 per cent, higher than a year ago in the large towns, and about 30 per cent, higher in small towns and villages. There is also a very slight general increase on prices a month ago. Some of the advances in price on last year are considerable. Thus, granulated sugar is about 68 per cent." up, fish about 64, flour about 50, and bread about 402 Prices of British meat average about 40 per cent. and of imported ment about 50 per cent. higher. Cheese is about 33 per cent. more, bacon 18 per cent., ten 28. One Remington Typewriter. Pianos by eggs, milk, and butter are not much increased, and margarine is only 4 per cent. up. It is interesting, by the way, to note that Messrs. Bathgate, the well-known Bristol firm, in their weekly report, give an optimistic forecast as to the price of order, this young signaller leaped ever the wheat during the coming season. If the increases mentioned above seem not very cheerful reading for those who have 's domestic budget to consider, it is as well to recall the fact that in Germany and Austria food prices are very much worse.

RUSSIANS COUNTER-ATTACKING ENERGETICALLY.

DESPERATE FIGHTING ALONG THE WHOLE FRONT.

The energy of the Russian counter-attacks along the whole front is admitted in a German communique. The desperate nature of the fighting is attested to by a Petrograd communique, which, after mentioning that the situation is practically unchanged in the Riga region, says that the Germans between the river Lantze and Jacobstudt were unable to withstand furious Russian bayonet counter-attacks. The object of the enemy's offensive in this region is apparently to drive the Russians from the right bank of the Dvina. Further south, on the Vilna reads, where the position is generally stationary, the enemy is entrenching vigorously. The Russian communique states that south-oast of Grodno, towards Skidel, and along the left bank of the Niemen, Russian troops on Wednesday, by a series of floree actions aimed solely at inflicting the heaviest possible losses, succeeded in checking the enemy's offensive. The communique says that the Russians continue their retirement in perfect order in conformity with the general plan, making successful counterattacks from time to time. Thus near Kokhoro, west of Skidel, the Germans fled before the counter-attacks of the Russians.

Between the Niemen and the Pripet rivers the Russians are retiring towards the district between the river Zelvianka and the town of

A vigorous offensive by enemy infantry and cavalry along the left bank of the Pripet towards the Pinsk marshes was arrested, and a similar result was achieved on the roads to Kovno, where the Russians are stubbornly holding their positions on the Upper Stubel and Ikva rivers under a very fierce artillery fire.

The communique, referring to the Seroth successes, says that the Russian Armies are firmly and resolutely carrying out a movement in conformity with the general plan, and contemplate the future with confidence, relyington their faithful Ally, the French Army, which for a fortnight had been bomburding the German front with terrible effect.

Field-Marshal Sir John French recently told him that he had nover witnessed treops more contemptuous of death. He was to ask Trades Unionists to back them up. We had established sixteen national arsonals and were constructing cloven more. It was almost entirely a labour problem. Trades Unionists alone could assist. Our machinery was not yet working night and day. If it employed every skilled worker even then we should not have too much labour. He believed that if the Trades Unionists ceased to place certain restrictions on output, in some places it would be increased by 20 per cent. and in others by 200 per cent. The Government intended, owing to the lack of skilled workers, to give the unskilled workers work which they could do, reserving for mechanics the highly skilled work,

Mr. Lloyd George referred to a circular issued at Coventry which made a deliberate attempt to restrict the output of guns. He asked if anyone defended such action? (Loud cries of "No.") He affirmed that he knew they wouldn't-(Cheers.) Even Belgians had been invited not to work to their full strength, although Belgium had been ravished and her women dishonoured. Mr. Lloyd George called upon the workmen to fearlessly and courageously declare that they would in no way hamper their native land, which was fighting for its life. " Let them share in the greatest victory ever achieved." (Cheers.) The Congress passed a cordial vote of thanks to Mr. Lloyd George.

Important Board Of Trade Regulations.

London, Sept. 9. The Daily Telegraph says that the Lancashire cotton trade has received new regulations from the Board of Trade which require a certificate concerning every yard of cloth exported except to the Colonies, in order that such may not reach enemy hands. The authorities are convinced that Lancashire cloth, which was apparently unsuitable for aircraft, had been obtained by our enemies through neutrals and had been treated so as to make it suitable for
